

Contents

Foreword.....	v
Contents.....	vii
Acronyms.....	x
List of Figures and Tables.....	xii
About ACIRRT.....	xv
Introduction.....	xvii
Chapter 1: The human face of workplace change.....	1
Labour market change: Losers and winners.....	2
Workplace change and new job pressures.....	3
Working longer.....	4
Working harder.....	5
The new forms of bargaining.....	6
Why has it all happened?.....	8
Chapter 2: What's behind the changes?.....	10
Australia's post-war social settlement.....	12
The dismantling of the settlement.....	15
Structural weaknesses.....	16
Historical ruptures.....	17
A transformed labour market.....	17
Shifting political alliances—Labor transformed.....	20
Shifting political alliances—the death of McEwenism.....	23
The failure of investment.....	27
The connection with workplace change.....	31
Social protection and the market.....	33

Chapter 3: Bargaining for change.....	36
Changing the formal system.....	36
Moving towards the decentralisation of industrial relations.....	37
Enterprise bargaining.....	37
The enterprise agreement system.....	41
The spread of enterprise bargaining.....	43
What's enterprise bargaining about?.....	44
The expectations.....	44
The issues dealt with in agreements.....	46
Assessing agreements.....	48
New forms of bargaining.....	49
Decentralised formal bargaining—an assessment.....	51
Other changes at the workplace.....	52
How has change occurred?.....	54
The institutional legacy of reform.....	57
Crisis in the unions.....	57
Union membership.....	57
Unions at the workplace.....	61
The impact on the Industrial Relations Commission.....	63
Chapter 4: Wages: winners and losers.....	64
Wealth, income and earnings inequality—an overview.....	65
The top of the labour market.....	67
The bottom of the labour market.....	69
Non-market incomes.....	69
Earnings inequality—behind the aggregate view.....	72
The aggregate view.....	72

Dispersion within the earnings distribution.....	74
Fragmentation in wage fixing institutions.....	75
Occupational dispersions.....	81
A new classification scheme for earnings.....	84
Segmentation in the labour market.....	86
The problem of low paying jobs.....	90
A comparative view.....	91
The implications of being a low paid workers.....	94
Chapter 5: Working longer and harder.....	101
Working longer.....	103
Working harder.....	106
The overworked Australian.....	109
Why are people working longer and harder.....	109
The industrial relations context.....	112
Assessing the changes.....	115
Responding to workplace change.....	117
Goodbye to the standard working week.....	119
Selling the changes in working time arrangements.....	122
Enterprise agreements and family friendly measures.....	124
Chapter 6: Job security in a changing labour market.....	126
Insecurity—the labour market story.....	127
Unemployment and retrenchments—the backdrop to insecurity.....	127
Risks of unemployment.....	129
Retrenchments—the experience of losing work.....	132
Regaining employment.....	133
A changing labour market.....	136
The rise of part-time employment.....	136
The growth in precarious employment: casuals and temporaries.....	139
The rise of ‘non-employees’: outworkers, contractors and agency workers.....	142
Outsourcing—a closer look.....	145

Insecurity—the workplace story.....	147
Corporate downsizing.....	147
Restructuring of workplaces.....	150
The links between job insecurity and workplace change—workers’ perceptions.....	153
Chapter 7: Managing work in the future: new directions for policy.....	156
The argument in brief.....	156
How can we respond to these developments?.....	157
The globalisation dilemma.....	157
Putting workplace ‘reform’ in context.....	160
Getting the macro policy right.....	161
Dealing with unemployment.....	161
Industry policy.....	163
Rethinking the role of fairness.....	164
A new agenda for policy at work.....	165
The providers of labour: from employees to workers.....	167
Providers of jobs and employment benefits: augmenting the enterprise with portability and pooling arrangements.....	168
The framework: from awards and ad hoc income support to integration of industrial and social security rights over the life cycle.....	169
Wages: revamping the foundations for a new era.....	173
Hours: augmenting the full-timer model with work scheduling rights.....	174
Employment security: more than a matter of working life policy alone.....	175
Conclusion.....	176
References.....	179
Index.....	197